The global air transport industry secured more than 42 million commercial flights in 2019, carried around 4.4 billion passengers and generated 65.5 million jobs worldwide. New emerging markets continue to be the drivers of impressive growth around the world, leading airlines to open new destinations and shorten travel times for millions of new passengers.

As the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) and the International Air Transport Association (IATA) recognize, the biggest challenge to the industry is the attraction, qualification and retention of future professionals of excellence. Industry companies around the world understand that talent is now a primary and critical source of competitive advantage.

The Degree in Air Transport Management is intended for students who seek to lead and manage in the world of aviation. The course focuses on a wide range of aspects of the global air transport system, with a view to pursuing a professional career in a leading sector, whether in airlines or airports, regulatory entities or air transport service providers and the like.
